

Where were you on March 19th 2005? Well you certainly were not at the annual Pork Pie Appreciation Society competition because it had been put back by three weeks to accommodate top pie man Stuart Booths wedding. Now 2005 had two bits of good news, firstly the happy occasion that Stuart was tying the knot and secondly, having missed out could now finally attend the pork pie competition along with my several times before, I badminton pal Krakatoa Keith as a fully fledged pie judger extraordinaire. What follows is pretty much fact, it may have been 'tickled' here and there but I can assure you that no pie officials were harmed for the want of a good story. club

To rusely yours's Dilapraned Dave (irregular pie-juages).

P.S. If you normally attend the pie competition and find that you are expecting a happy event next March don't blame me just get on the phone and tell Kevin!!
